Foster Care in Europe,
two study days
on the theme :

Following the thread of the life story,
The Art of combined parenthood

Apfel, supported by ANPF, offers you two seminars proposing that we :

- Focus on the child and how he/she might experience the separation from his/her birth parents and the consequence of having to deal with multiple parental figures. We will introduce practical tools designed to help the child make sense of his/her experience and build his own personal narrative.
- Tour across the European scenery of Foster Care, in order to examine how family relationships are impacted by the child's placement. Is multiple parenthood used as a way to combine strengths and compensate weaknesses? Or, on the contrary, could our intervention generate exclusion and competition between birth and foster families, instead of/rather than cooperation?
- Explore Foster Care practice with our colleagues from neighboring countries, in order to discover new visions and proposals for organizing the relationships between birth parents and the foster family. Introducing and developing innovative approaches of parenting, going beyond the substitution of one family with another. Learn how to build new intervention models, based on cooperation, partnership, and inclusion.

In line with APFEL's mission, we will expand our scope to Europe, to better understand the developments in the field of foster care. We invite you to share our resolution to combine theory and practice. Come and travel with us, step aside and, who knows, you might discover alternative pathways, leading to stronger commitment and greater attention to the child's concerns.

ACTING FOR PROMOTION OF FOSTERING AT EUROPEAN LEVEL

Thursday 1 December 2016

On the thread of the life story is a bilingual French/English International Non for Profit Association created in 2012 which brings together groups individuals ,all types of representatives of Foster Care in Europe.

★ Objectif

Ambition of APFEL is to offer a platform for debate and create a resource base for those who want to promote and improve Foster care of children and young people in Europe

The main objectives of APFEL are:

To promote the exploration and comparative analysis

To bridge theory and practice

To encourage the dissemination of knowledge and experience

To compare national contexts and identifying trends and best practice

To disseminate innovative and promising tools through the 3 existing working groups

-Quality care through training and support of carers

-Voice of the Child through life books and children participation on the basis of child's rights

-Plural parenting to open way to cooperation between birth and foster families

To organize seminars, training courses on the pathway of APFEL caravan

Paris 2014, Geneva 2014, Milano 2015, Lille 2016, Italy in 2017 and Spain 2018

These two day seminar are organized by APFEL - European Network for the Promotion of the Family Foster Care in Europe

With support of ANPF

National Association for family placements

This half-day seminar is the continuation of another APFEL event, organized in Paris in May 2014 on "The Life album in Europe." After this event, several French partners decided to create a biographical companion for foster children, which will be presented here. My Backpack, another narrative tool, created in the Netherlands, addresses the same question very differently. These two presentations will highlight the importance of listening to the child and storytelling for the child. It will demonstrate how this can favorably impact the child in care : enabled them to make sense of his/her life experience and to give consistency and continuity to his personal narrative.

This biographical work with the child raises fundamental questions : Who fuels the biographical work ? The child, or the professional ? Who decides to initiate it? Who and how to coach it, and set its limits ? What is the role of birth parents and the foster family in its development ? Such questions, reaching the essence and dynamics of foster care, will be debated.
